Park Warns Japan Over Murder Case

President Calls In Tokyo's Ambassador

By Don Oberdorfer TOKYO, Aug. 30 (WP).—Relations between Japan and South Korea took a turn for the worse today with an unusual personal warning by Korean President Ching Hee Park.

Summoning the Japanese ambassador to the presidential man-sion in Seoul, Mr. Park expressed dissatisfaction with Japan's investigation of the background of the assassination attempt on him in which his wife was killed on Aug. 15. He demanded that Tokyo control what he called "criminal groups" in Japan working for his

After the meeting, Amhassador Torso Ushiroku told newsmen, "I regard this as the greatest sort of warning,"

. It is very unusual for Mr. Park to initiate diplomatic business with ambassadors. In this case, he employed Foreign Minister Kim Dong Jo as interpreter for the 40-minute meeting.

The alleged assassin has been identified as Mun Se Kwang, a 22-year-old Korean living in Osaka, Japan. South Korean authorities have charged that Mr. Mim was acting on instructions from North Korean agents associated with a North Koreanoriented association of Korean residents of Japan.

So far, Japan has narrowly limited its investigation to violations of domestic laws such as the false Japanese passport and stolen Japanese police pistol al-legedly used by Mr. Mun.

Japanese police officials have said that residents of Japan will not be turned over to the South Korean government if extradition is formally demanded. Other officials have said there will be no interference with legal political activities of Korean Communist or nationalist groups here which oppose the Park government. In an appearance here today before the Foreign Correspondents Club, Japanese Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura said South Korean reports on the assessination were "at substantial variance" from those of Japanese police. He said Japan will pursue the case "as far as Japanese domestic law per-

North Korea Chided Over

Luxurv Saunas

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 20 (UPI).-Through its embassy here, North Korea has ordered five super-luxury saumas complete with stereos, carpets and padded furniture for $23,000. an official of the Tylos Sauma Co. said today.

Sven-Olof Jansson, manager of the firm, said: "It is upsetting to find out that the socalled Socialists use the people's money on things like this, especially after all their cheap propaganda on how great they are."

Mr. Jansson said that the North Koreans may cancel their July order because of his revelation today, "but I feel that it is more important to disclose the falseness and the propaganda lies that are spread by many Socialist countries.* He added that the North Koreans could have gotten ordinary saunas with plain wooden walls for onefifth the $23,000 outlay.

'No Deal' Pledged In Abduction of Echeverria Kin

GUADALAJARA Mexico, Aug. 30 (AP),—The government said yesterday that it will not negotiate with the kidnappers of the 83-year-old father-in-law of President Luis Echeverria because it "does not make deals with crim-

Officials would not comment on a report that the kidnappers had demanded $1.6 million and the release of "political prisoners" in exchange for Jose Zuño

The police and the army set up roadblocks at major junctions and on the highways leading out of Guadalajara after Zuño Her-nandez was seized Wednesday morning at one of the city's busiest intersections, a few blocks from the Jalisco etate government beedquarters.

A report said notes left in various parts of the city iden-tified the kidnappers as members of the People's Armed Revolutionary Front, which kidnapped U.S. Consul-General Terrance Leonhardy last year. The state government denied the report but it was recalled that officials had issued a false denial of a similar report when Mr. Leonhardy was abducted.

There was no comment by Mr. Echeverria.

Soyuz Night Landing Called Part of Plan, Not Emergency

MOSCOW, Aug. 30 (AP).-The head of Soviet cosmonaut training indicated today that the precedent-breaking night landing of Soyuz-15 was part of its regular flight pian and not an abrupt end to a shot that failed in its primary mission, as some Western space experts believe.

"There is no doubt that it is more convenient to land in the daytime." Mai. Gen. Vladimir Shatalov was quoted as saying in the Communist party paper Pravda. "But flights are becoming more regular. This is our work and we must do it in any conditions, including the landing...

"Besides that, hy tying the landing to s definite time of the day, we set in advance rigid conditions for the starting crew. The task was to prove that it is pos-sible to work at night as efficiently as in day. I think the crew of the Soyuz spaceship has proved outlined in great detail the return of the Soyuz-15, stressing that it was a normal, routine landing although under rain conditions. They reported that the crew was well and intended to return to

But there was no mention of any attempt to link up with the orbiting Salyut-3 space station, considered by some experts to be the main reason for the flight and there were none of the usual references to a "successful flight."

Western specialists expressed the belief that the Soyuz ship may have been damaged durin attempts to dock with the Salyut, forcing the cosmonauts, Lt. Col. Gennady Sarafanov and Col. Lev Demin to return to earth Wednesday night after only about 50

The Soviet press did not report on the results of the flight. It said only that the two cosmonauts were preparing for meetings at Star City, the Soviet space complex near Moscow.

On the night landing, the Soviet labor newspaper, Trud, commented:

"If a spaceship makes landings only during the day, then this fact will lead to severe limitations on the schedule of space

Previously. Trud said that the length and programs of space flights had to be adjusted to make sure the capsules landed on the plains of the Kazakhstan Steppe during the day.

"With the increasing number of space flights, such limitations are becoming a serious brake to their development." Trud said.

It noted that Soyuz-10 landed at dawn, "between day and night," and said that the crew of Soyuz-14. the last previous space shot. tested orientation of the space ship for return at night.

"This is a continuation of those experiments," Trud said.

Enlistment Lags For U.S. Navy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP). -The Navy failed to meet its recruiting objective last month for the first time since January, the Pentagon has reported.

A spokesman suggested that this was because the Navy is choosy obout the men it accepts as volunteers. "The Navy con-tinues to emphasize high-quality standards," he said. "There is no intention to compromise these high standards in order to meet numerical goals."

The Navy fell 14 per cent below its objective, recruiting 11,260 men and women last month. The Army also slipped, but only by 4 per cent. It signed up 20,090 volunteers. The Air Force hit 101 per cent of its goal with 7.480 recruits. The Marine Corps made its quota with 6,250.

SWITZERLAND: Outdoor Sculpture Show Stirs Up Storm in Geneva

GENEVA (NYT). - Eighteen modern sculptures that are temporarily on public display in the principal shopping district and its adjoining lakeside promenade have driven many of this conservative city's citizens into a state of frenzy.

An Opportunity "We wanted to give people who never go into a museum an op-portunity to see these works and to arouse their interest," he said.

The interest that was sparked was almost more than had been bargained for by the exhibition sponsors, a 200-member association of Geneva residents that would like to provide the city The Vigilantes, a local rightwing political party, made an issue of the exhibition in the municipal council, denouncing the city's officials for having permitted the "public display of

None of the non-Vigilante councilors vaunted the artistic merits of the sculptures. They stayed on safe gound by defend-ing the exhibition as a laudable attempt to provoke a public discussion of art

Answers Need

Similarly, many of the citizens who defended the exhibition mostly praise the attempt to arouse public interest in art issues rather than the merits of the works on display. The exhibition, one defender wrote, an-swers a need to break through the barriers of a cultural ghetto by putting the modern works in full view."

In the letters-to-the-editor columns of the local newspapers, most writers put sarcastic quotation marks around the word art if they use it at all—when giving their impression of the spark-ling steel tubes, massive fust-colored from structures and gally painted abstract forms that are typical of the collection.

But the quarrel over what is art is of no concern to the ardent admirers of the biggest of the exhibits, a 16-foot-high mass of welded and bolted from that is: just off the Mont Blanc Bridge where the Rhone River leaves the Lake of Geneva.

Living np to its billing, the Big Art Show is grand in size. But it is narrow in scope and innovation, chancing not even the most conservative deviation from traditional forms and materials Yet despite the size of the exhibit and its ultimate goal—sales—the quality, quantity ratio is surprisingly high.

Although artists represented come from anywhere between Yugoslavia and the United States, this is primarily e national ex-hibition and a reflection of the current trends in modern German art. On display are works from three organizations: the New Group, young, lesser-known artists; the New Munich Artists' Union, older, more established painters and sculptors, end the Secession, a melange of the first

Sags and Wrinkles

In the mirror of contemporary art, both the Secession and New Munich Artists' Union show their sags and wrinkles, while the New Group emerges fresh-faced and rigorous. But even their image is amazingly prim and inhibited for a group most of whose mem-bers are under 35. This impression may result from the group's decision to submit only drawings this year.

Historically, the drawing has been merely a blueprint for larger works, only receotly coming into its own as an art form. As perhaps the least exuberant and most cerebral form, drawing can expose an artist's creative process, bringing the viewer into the nucleus of the work and requiring an intellectual effort as well as a sensory response. Its transparency demands perfection of line and detail that paintings can slop over. Draftsmanship being a very large corneratone in German training, this exhibit dazzles in its technical excellence.

The subject matter, on the other hand, is what one has come to expect from young artists—sex, violence, sex-and-violence. Julie-

MUNICH (IHT).—As Europe's warm political protest, and hohum social message. Preoccupa-tion with death is seen in many forms, with skeletons, diseaseridden corpses and grotesque cripples littering the museum walls. In the New Group section, a compartmentalized scene of dismembered bodies by Roland Dörfler is entitled, simply, "Land-scape." Heinz Knoke's "Speaker" represents the universal dictator, hollow-cheeked, cadaver-like head resembling Hitler, barking commands to the world, the can-cer of corruption having eaten away part of his face.

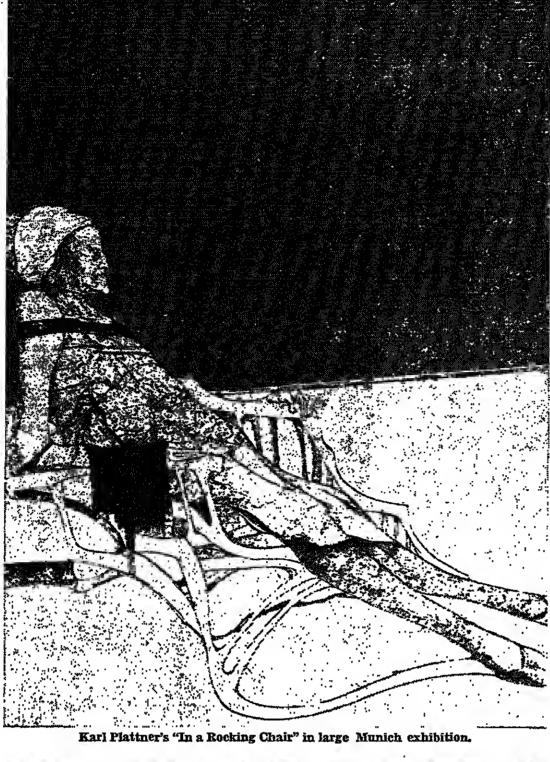

Silent Scream

A silent scream of anguish shatters the museum bush, Hel-mnt Lander's "Sinai 1." Next to this powerful drawing, Heinz-Otto Laug's halcyon "Seashells," one of the few still lifes. The intricacy in G. A. Breitling's "Roman Afternoon" proves that precision can convey sensuality, but at the expense of the abandon and expansiveness that painting permits.
At best, an interaction of line and space excites the imegination on seeing Mac Zimmermann's "Angust 1973 Formentera," a vacant landscape strewn with shells and bones, two lovers bolding hands amid the wreckage. The Secession group's entries also include paintings and sculptures among the drawings. Of these, Kleus Böttger'a "Head in the Circle," e blood-splattered nude female torse viewed through the cross-hatching of a rifle sight, has a macabre, crotic fascination. One of the more impressive graphics, Karl Plattner's litho-graph. "In a Rocking Chair," conveys both the liberty and impending death of very old age. The spirit of the Secession group is summed up in Reiner Zimnik's melancholy "Bride of the Security Forces," she being slightly overweight, aging, myopic and tightly

Third Section

The third section raises the most expectations, for it numbers among its members many famous names and established reputations. Kokoschka, himself a memher of the New Munich Artists' Union, is shamelessly imitated in a charcoal portrait, "OK II," drawn in the artist's style by Boidi Wagenstetter. Riding a shima" is a mixed-media sunrise, lach, Arp and Lipchitz, wave of current events is Roland this torn page on mankind's Lis-Excluding those pictures already Schaller's "Gulag Archipelago," a tory folded back to reveal a purchased by the museum and

The sculpture in the latter two groups is a sort of bronze zoo of technically adequate but artis-tically impotent pieces, the prin-cipal exception being Joachim Dunkel's "Crucifixion." the Bayarian government, the art is for sale, with prices ranging from $270 to $66,500. Normally, one third of the exhibit is sold, but both sales and attendance are slightly down so far this year. There are bargains to be found, for the Germans remain masterful technicians and, as this show proves, sometimes even exciting.

The Grosse Kunstausstellung continues daily through Sept. 22.

ART MARKET: Some Questions as the Season Begins

By Souren Melikian

TONDON, Aug. 30 (IHT) -As Sotheby's first sale of the season approaches Wednesday. ort market professionals wonder whether "they" will still be in the market.

"They," are the Near Eastern and Middle Eastern dealers-or the Western agents acting as buyers on their behalf—who have helped sales of late 19th-century or early 20th-century bronzes and furniture through June and July. At the end of July, "they" came out in the open and for the first time some Middle Eastern names just pseudonyms-were heard in Sotheby's Belgravia's rooms and went down in print on the price lists issued by the auctioneers after the sale.

The results must have been startling to the outsider, for example: Two lots were very similar. Both were pairs of gilt bronze candelabra supported by nude, chubby, puffy-faced boys.

In aesthetic terms the two pairs, both French and both of the sixties or seventles of the 19th century, shared the same cheap quality of the ornament, the same excess of gaudy gold that in the Nepoleon III court was the peak of 18th-century chic. One example out of a hundred: On July 24, a rolltop desk, or so Sotheby's called it perhaps to give it glamour, a "kingwood parquetry and marquetry bureau à cylindre," 114 centimeters wide, was knocked down at £4.000 to a London dealer, C.E. Alexander. Sotheby's had put it down as French C. 1900—as indeed it was: a hideous copy of the Louis XVIstyle bureau which the Faubourg St. Antoine in Paris turned out by the thousands. An almost identical burean had sold on April 17-also to C. E. Alexander-for £2,000. This is not to be understood as a 100 per cent rise on trash furniture because other cases do not bear this out, But it does illustrate the jigsaw movement of prices. Eyes Opened to Gorky's Virtues

By John Walker

LONDON, Aug. 30 (IRT).— Maxim Gorky for too long has been underrated as a playwright, agen as someone standing in the shadow of Chekhov, as the author of one play, "The Lower Depths," and some other briefly sensational works that owed their success to the political situation in Russia in the early 1900s.

The Royal Shakespeare Com-pany's recent devotion to his work has opened our eyes—or, at least, mine-to Gorky's many virtues, to his large and exuberant vision of life, his superabundant "Summerfolk"—the RSC's third Gorky production-et the Aldwych, is both e remarkable pley and a remarkable production. Gorky wrote the piey in 1905 and it is only now receiving its British premiere. It is an explicitly political play, with Gorky undertaking some expert hourgeois-bashing. What is astonishing is that the politics are as relevant now as they were then, an impression aided by Jeremy Brooks and Kitty Hunter Blair's modern, idiomatic English trans-

The summerfolk of the play's title are the nouveau riche. children of working-class parents who have made money and are now spending it on renting villas the summer where they sit and talk idle profundities. They regard themselves as the liberal intelligentsia. As Edward Braua points out in a program note, the play is almost e sequel to Che-khov's "Cherry Orchard": "It is as though Lopakhin has chopped down the cherry trees in Madame Ranevskaye's orchard and built dachas down by the river. Defense Allowed Gorky condemns them for turning their backs on the class from which they came. Yet be does not deny his characters their humanity or individuality and allows them eloquent defense of their attitude. Suslov, an en-gineer, regards his early poverty as reason enough for now leading a luxurious life, dedicated to self-interest. Ryumin, in love with his neighbor's wife, theo-rizes that truth is ugly and that illusion and deliberate self-deception make existence more beautiful. He declares his love in the fond belief that it will be returned, is rejected and, trying to kill himself, manages to shoot himself in the shoulder while eiming for the heart.

There are a complex of subplots, as each of the play's many characters seeks different sorts of fulfillment—Yulia, Suslov's wife, m an allair with a triend of the family; Bassov, a lawyer, in hearty games and heavy drinking: Kaleria, his sister, in vriting bad poetry. But the play concentrates on the dissatisfac tion felt by Varvara, Bassov's wife, who still remembers the idealism of their student days and their dreams of what they would do with their lives, and by her confused young brother, Vlass, who gains the courage to express his conviction of the emptiness of their existence through his love of an older, wiser woman, Maria, Sense of Pace bourgeois convention of saying unplessant things only behind someone's back breaks down, and there is a series of fiery confrontations between the three dissidents and the others. The catalyst for this is the presence of a stranger, Shalimov, a writer much admired for his idealism who — shades of "Bingo" — turns out in person to be a corrupt and petty hack.

The first two leisurely acts. directed with a sure sense of pace by David Jones, lead to an

From the early scenes of languid gossip on green lawns to the final shouting climax, "Summerfolk" is exciting, gripping theater. It may not be great art, hut it is e fine play, compassionits devastating portrayal of an impotent, rootless self-regarding elite, as truthful and uncomfortable as it must have been 70 years ago.

David Jones's production, with an excellent set by Timothy O'Brien and Tazeena Firth, is a brilliant achievement. The acting, too, is of high quality, with Ian Richardson's Shalimov, the smooth and empty author, outstanding. Margaret Tyzack as the clear-sighted Maria, Norman Rodway as the bone-headed Bas-sov and Tony Church as the hitter Suslov also give notable

MUSIC IN ITALY

Concentrating on Busoni As First-Rate Composer

By William Weaver

EMPOLI, Italy, Aug. 30 (IPT). -Last night, the Accademie Chigiana of Siena moved its Settimana Senese Festival e few miles north to offer a combined concert and opera program in the little Tuscan city of Empoli,

This was the native town of the composer Ferruccio Busoni, who died almost 50 years ago, so last night's program was celebratory, part of a series of Busoni concerts Empoli will be giving over the next few months, Busoni celebrations will also bear more permanent fruit: The city is setting up e center of Busoni studies, and a complete edition of Busoni's writings-including many fugitive articles and essays never collected before-will be published before the end of the year by the Milanese firm of

Inaugural Concert

The first part of the inaugural concert consisted of two Busoni lieder, persuasively sung (in the original German) by the baritone Claudio Desderl, one of Italy's most gifted and versatile young singers. The songs were "Altoums Gebet" and "Mephistopheles Lied," of particular interest because they can be considered studies, preliminary sketches for two of Busoni's operas, respectively "Tu-randot" and "Doctor Faust."

Unfortunately, the concert was held in the open air, in the spacious but noisy Piazza Farinata Degli Uberti, so the listen-er had to strain his ears to catch and appreciate the music's subtle-The same problem vitiated enjoyment of the "Diverti- night's concert proved onca mento" for flute and orchestra, again,

The square's noises abated somewhat for the second half of the evening, so it was easier to follow the staged performance of Busoni's one-act opera "Arlecchi-no," written in Switzerland during World War I and first presented in 1917. A witty, but per-vasively melancholy Commedia dell'Arte, the opera is notable for the refinement and variety of the orchestral writing.

Festival Orchestra

The Siena festival's orchestra did a creditable job, under the fluent direction of Piero Bellugi. Again Desderi, as Ser Matteo, sang well, end so did the rest of the cast in which we could almost include the prompter, whose insistent voice often created an unwanted pre-echo effect.

Lorenzo Ghiglia designed a tilting, Caligari-like set and appropriate, traditional costumes Roberto Guicciardini's staging was deft and tactful.

Yesterday afternoon, before the music, Italy's distinguished composer Luigi Dallapiccola gave a talk on Busoni in Empoli's Municipal Library. It was an instructive and pleasant hour, in which Dallapiccola discussed the multifaceted nature of Busoni's career, emphasizing the neglect that dogged his compositions for such a long time. Now that only a few disks and piano-rolls remain to document Busoni the virtuoso planist, we can more easily-and profitably-concentrate on Busoni the composer, beyond doubt an artist of the first rank, as less the field was accompanied by a series of paradoxes. One was that dealers, or at least most dealers who sell 19th-century furniture, bronzes, etc., do not derive immense profit from it. Near Easterners have a preference for auctions where they have the easy feeling that the laws of supply and demand shelter them from the dangers of overpaying. They are still new et the game, and they usually do not fully measure the effect of artificial excitement that may take hold of two dealers, each with e given client in view. By far the great-

The £4,000 paid for the bureau à cylindre bought by Mr. Alexander is 30 per cent more than the price the same bureau of the 18th-century period is likely to fetch at suction at the Hotel Drouot in Paris. But very few people in Europe now want this bureau, and the new buyers from the East will not even look at it: the patinated wood, the slightly shaky leg that it may have as e result of respectable age, won't do. It is not only e

The estimates given by Sotheby's Belgravia for the Sept. 4 auction are optimistic: £700 for a bureau de dame-a small writing desk with folding tablet, cabriole legs and marquetry panels represent-ing landscapes—datable to around 1900. But then this estimate and nearly all the others underscores the third paradox of the market for flashy furniture: The miracle works in London hut not Paris.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Iran Said to Eye Volkswagen

Shares of Volkswagenwerk rose to 90 marks in trading before the opening of the Frankfurt stock exchange today from 85 at the close yes-terday on a report that Iran wants to invest in the company. The stock closed at 89.10. The newspaper Handelsblatt said VW has been conducting serious negotiations with Iran for the past week over a possible production plant in Iran, which reportedly would provide most of the investment required for the project. "Rumors have it that the Shah is seeking in this con-nection the acquisition of a portion of the shares currently held by the German government," the report said. The government owns 20 per cent of the auto manufacturer. It has been known of the auto manufacturer. It has been known for some time that VW is considering a plant

U.S. Firms to Cut Car Production

U.S. auto makers are scheduling 6.5 per cent fewer new-car assemblies next month than in a strike-hampered September 1973, largely reflecting cautious planning by General Motors Corp. GM has apparently decided against trying to make up much of the production it has lost to strikes in the past two months and instead has targeted relatively conservative output next month, sources say. The industry's planned output of about 674,000 cars will leave third-quarter production at about 1,670,000 cars, down over 12 per cent from a year before and some 9 per cent below the schedule sources said auto makers had targeted at the beginning of July. Most of the drop from year-before totals in both the quarter and September reflect GM's plan to build only 320,000 cars in September, down nearly 25 per cent from the 424,207 cars it built last Scrtember.

Rothmans Expects Profit Decline

Rothmans International expects "a reduction in our profits during the current financial year," Sir Derek Pritchard, chairman, said in his annual statement. "Just how much our profits will be reduced will depend largely on our success or otherwise in obtaining the vitally necessary increases in our selling prices." Sir Derek said. The chairman said that because Rothmans' tobacco and cigarette activities are in various countries, the company has the advantages of a wider market and in the long term the company should be able to ride out adverse business conditions in individual areas. Rothmans has not yet reported earnings for the year ended June 30. In the nine months to March 31 the company's pretax profit was £27.2 million, up slightly from £36.5 million a year

Magnavox directors have decided not to recommend a North American Philips offer for the company. But several of these indicators, such as new orders for durable goods, are pushed sharply higher by rising prices.

When orders are rising, it should mean that business is going to improve, at least briefly. Recently, however, it has to some extent only meant that everything is getting more expensive. In an effort to overcome this problem the Commerce Department, on an experimental basis has been publishing an index of five leading indicators measured in nonmonetary units, such as the average workweek in mann-facturing. In its latest survey, the board found appropriations were at a record $16.29 billion, up 39 per cent from the first quarter's 811.35 billion. The first quarter was the first time in nearly three years that the figure had declined, slipping 0.6 per cent from the fourth quarter of 1973,

The second-quarter increase was heavily concentrated in the nonferrous metals, paper and chemical industries, which are rushing to increase their capacity, the board said.

"Appropriations are likely to remain high in petroleum, paper and chemicals," the board said, "but they are expected to level off and then dip in nonferrous metals, as they already have done in the fron and steel industry."

The petroleum industry led with a 125 per cent appropriations increase, and nondurable goods producers boosted planned spending 65 per cent more. The other gainers were paper, rubber, chemicals, and food. Textiles, tobacco, printing and publishing, however, posted decreases.

One device mentioned by Mr. Bennett at a news conference would be an increase in the small fee now charged on im-ported oil. But he stressed that this and other possibilities, such as freeing domestic oil from controls or an addition to the gaso-line tax, are not at the decision stage now.

He said that they will be taken up as part of the whole package of decisions to be made by President Ford in the context of "project independence" at the end of this year,

Investors took heart from Federal Reserve figures indicating growth of the nation's money supply had dropped sharply since the first half of the year. Insiders said the leveling off would allow the Fed to relax its credit hold and relieve noward pressure on interest rates.

Treasury bill rates fell again from record levels earlier in the week, reflecting the belief the Fed's slight shift in policy would result in a smooth decline in interest rates.

Adding to the surge of opti-mism on Wall Street, First Ne-tional City Bank and First National Bank of Chicago announced they would hold their prime rate for top business borrowers at 12 per cent, although guide-lines call for a move above the current record level.

Kaufman & Broad was one of the most active issues on the NYSE, slipping 1/4 to 3 1/8. A block of 120,900 shares of the issue traded at 2 7/8. The company, the nation's largest home builder, said it expected to report a $19.9-million net loss for the

On the over-the-counter market, the industrial average on the NASDAQ index rose by 1.20.

In Treasury bills, the three-month bill ended the week an almost unheard-of 100 basis points in yield down from Monday's auction level, the six-month bill shed about 55 points and the 10-month bill, despite its apparent unattractiveness, dropped by about 40

The unusual distortions also gave rise to some speculation that the Federal Reserve had eased its monetary policy, which helped to quarter ending Saturday as a fuel the rise to some extent. Corporate bonds were mixed, with the relatively good reception of the weck's major new issues helping sentiment somewhat.

The bellwether issue, $150 million of Northwestern Bell dcbentures, will go down in history as the first in which a triple rated subsidiary of American Telcphone & Telegraph had to pay more than 10 per cent for longterm funds.

It sold well, of course, as did the other major offerings. Top-quality recent issue bonds managed to close the week with net gains of np to 1/2 point, but o'der bonds fell by anything np to two points as institutions switched from them into the week's new

Fed Seen Easing Money Curb As Business Loans Increase

By John H. Allan

Business loans at major New York City banks increased $105 million during the week ended Wednesday, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York disclosed yesterday, The expansion in loan demand brought to $262 million the in-crease in commercial and industrial loan volume here over the last four weeks, Since midyear, such loans have mushroomed more than $1.36 billion-more than double the $578-million increase in the similar period last year. Of the increase in business loans since midyear, about $400 million was borrowed by gas and electric utilities and almost that much by oil refining companies.

Analysis suggested that about two-thirds of the unexpected increase in husiness-loan demand

this summer could be traced directly to the sharply higher price

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (NYT),— loans of federal funds averaged Susiness loans at major New York 11.84 per cent during the week ended Wednesday, down 39 basis points (or 39,100ths of a percentage point) from the preceding week and the lowest level for this key rate since June 5. The effective funds rate yesterday declined further, to 11.67 per cent. "A case can be made for the Fed to have eased at this stage," Merrill Lynch Government Securities Inc. suggested earlier this week after it watched the Fed's operations in the credit markets.

"It would be made primarily on the basis of slower growth rates over significant time periods in the key monetary aggregates," the Merrill Lynch subsidiary went on. According to money supply figures released yesterday by the

New York Fed, the total amount of currency in the hands of the public plus most checking-account balances everaged $281 billion in the week ended Aug. 21, down $200 million from the week.

Over the last four weeks, the money supply has averaged $280.6 billion, up from $280.1 billion a month earlier and no from $264.2

COMPLETED in April of this temporarily) than on what was botched or overlooked, Kissinger's ten by two well known CBS news analysts represents years of interviews, behind-the-scenes in-vestigations and fascination with their formidable subject. It is a very valuable addition to the literature on Kissinger. The Kalb brothers deal briefly with Kissinger's childhood, with his career at Harvard and with his role as a policy adviser before 1969, but their study really begins with the hiring of Kissinger by Nixon and covers Kissinger's diplomacy up to this spring. Consequently, the Kalbs' biography of Kissinger becomes an account the Nixon-Kissinger foreign

This does not mean that they turn away from the secretary of state's personality. They are obviously awed by him, by his unexpected skill at mastering, or at least neutralizing, a huge bureancracy, at surviving the suspi-ciousness of his colleagues in the White House, at seducing such difficult or hostile forces as congressional committees or the me-dia. They are impressed by his stamina, amused by his wit, delighted by his ability to make fun of his own ego. But psychological probing is not their chief interest. The not their chief interest. story they tell provides one with a multitude of clues for under-standing the highly complex character of a man whose clusiveness is both a requirement of his own diplomacy and the result of a quite extraordinary blend of deep seriousness and detachment, lifelong preparation and daily improvisation, ambition and loneliness, arrogance and humility.

abstract intelligence and intuitive finesse, toughness and extreme sensitivity. But when one is through with the book, the man remains elusive. The main effort of Marvin and Bernard Kalb bears on his actions, not his policy design. It is not an analytical or conceptual volume, and only in a short but excellent conclusion do they really sketch in what might be call-ed the "Grand Design" of the secretary—that "stable structure of peace" that resembles him altogether, for it remains as hard to grasp as it is supposed to be both complex and steady. Nor do they pause to study his style and his methods. It is on the story-indeed, very often the inside story—of his moves that they

In doing so, they come close to reproducing one of the key paradoxes of Kissinger's diplomacy. In his academic days, he had often criticized his predecessors in power for neglecting the long range and for coping with one crisis after the other. But his own policy has been far more ssful in dealing with crises than in fulfilling a long-range vision, despite all the lofty words of his yearly "State of the World" memages and the speeches at the United Nations. His own crisisdiplomacy has been infinitely more imaginative, more varied, more subtle and more persistent than that of his predecessors, as the Kalbs show. But he too has been better at coping with the urgent than at dealing with what might, in the long run, turn out to be the most important. The Kalbs' book, like Kissinger's diplomacy, has a certain breathless

It also reflects their subject insolar as it concentrates far more on what ended up well (at least frequent mismanagement of Western Europe and Japan, his indifference toward the developing world (until the oil crisis), his complacency about the Middle East powder keg (until it exploded last October), his policy to-ward Bangladesh, his support of the Greek and South Korean dictatorships, his persistent mishandling of Cambodia, his dis-dain for all forms of diplomacy other than bilateral, are barely covered here.

So, what we find is a detailed and often picturesque coverage of the high points: Vietnam, the "breakthroughs" with China and the U.S.S.R., the crisis in the Middle East in the summer of 1970, the Yom Kippur war and its aftermath. The Kalbs provide the reader with a huge mass of data, rather than with evaluations (they are, at times, critical of Klssinger's acts, but they seem reluctant to stress their own assessments). They show Kissinger's skill in combining the use of force or the threat of force, and flexible diplomacy. Contrary to what he has sometimes let some of his liberal friends believe, he has never hesitated to recommend or to sup-port the resort to violence when he thought it necessary, but it was on behalf of a specific diplomatic goal and with the intention of providing the opponent with a non-humiliating way out. "Our primary source was Henry Kissinger," say the authors. This raises some questions: Is the story described here necessarily the last word? Other participants might bave a different view.

One of the most interesting things about the volume is the light it throws on the Nixon-Kissinger relationship in the foreign policy process. The Kalbs argue that it was Nixon, not Kissinger, who, immediately after getting to the White House, push-ed for an opening to Red China. They point out that all the vital decisions on Vietnam were Nixon's (including the decision not to rush an agreement before the November 1972 election, given the objections of Saigon). If, on Vietnam, Kissinger often operated on a very short leash, this does not seem to have been the case in dealing with the U.S.S.R., about which the two men appear to be in full agreement.

The Kalbs, inevitably, end on a note of suspense. They realize that all of Kissinger's achievements are fragile or still rever-sible. They write that "nothing is more meaningful" to Kissinger "than the launching of SALT." Published at a time when SALT negotiations are stalled, for reasons not entirely unconnected with the impact of Watergate abroad, this book, which tends at times to lose sight of the forest in its enthusiasm for describing the more spectacular trees, leaves one with the hope that the authors will write a sequel. It should not only cover the rest of the story, but also look back again and attempt to put the whole remarkable story in perspective. It is too early for anyone to do so

China, which does not belong to the organization, earlier this month had asked for special permission to swim in the games. But it also requested that Taiwan be ousted from the pool, PINA refused. China then submitted a new application which did not refer to the ouster of Taiwan. FINA yesterday accepted it.

In Rome, the IAAF congress became chaotic et one point as excited black African delegates stood and shouted at the end of the debate on Bouth Africa.

One African after enother went to the speaker's stand to reject the arguments of Hannes Botha, of South Africa, who claimed his country had made progress to-wards racial integration in sport since the LAAF first banned South Africa from international competition two years ago.

The chaos reached its high point when Britain's Lord Exeter, the IAAF president, invited Botha to return to the stand and answer the criticisms.

Africans stood, shouting that h delegation was supposed to be limited to one speech. Exeter argued that Botha was not making a second speech, but The sixth, quarterback Craig merely answering questions. Finally, he took a vote on a show of hands, and the congress voted 144-138 not to permit Botha to speak again.

Exeter asked Botha to stand down, remarking, "I must say I think it is very unfair."

The congress then voted by secret ballot, 183-152, to continue a total ban on South Africa in international competition.

This was in defiance of the IAAF executive council, which had proposed that South Africa. still be banned from the Olympics, world championships and major regional games, but be permitted to compete in head-on matches against other nations. Botha had told the congress that the All-South African cham-

Old Intrepid Sails To Third Straight

Over Courageous NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 30 (NYT).

-While her sea-going cheering section shouted its approval, Intrepid beat Courageous yester day for the third straight time in their battle for the role of America's Cup defender.

The victory, by a margin of 54 seconds in light to moderate air, moved the ?-year-old Intrepld a step closer to becoming the first three-time cup defender.

The selection committee of the New York Yacht Club, though, probably will have the trials continue a few more days, possibly even to next Tuesday's deadline. Five racing days re sain, but the two 12-meter yachts probably wouldn't race today. The weather burean warned of gale-force winds of 40 to 60 knots from a tropical storm offshore.

The selection committee, headed by Henry Morgan, must decide by midnight next Tuesday which yacht it will send against Southern Cross of Australia in the best-of-seven cup defense starting Sept. 10. Each American boat has defeated the other four times in the final trials, which speakers from Eastern Europe, argued that integration in sport should begin at club level. The approval of China's particlpation in the Asian Games track events, which open at Tehran next week, was only a formality and was passed unanimously.

The council had recommended a change in the rules to allow a non-ifiliated country, such as China, to compete against member countries with the council's permission. The change in rules was rushed through for the benefit of the Asian Games.

The congress was held as athletes gathered in Rome for the European track and field championships, which open at the Olympic Stadium Sunday,

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 30 (AP). John Curtis pitched a one-hitter and Jim Dwyer and Mike Tyson hit ninth-inning run-scoring singles to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-1 victory over the San Diego Padres last night.

The victory, coupled with Pittsburgh's loss, moved the Cards to within a half game of the firstplace Pirates in the National League East.

Curtis had had a perfect game going for seven innings. But in the eighth, he walked leadoff man Dave Winfield, walked Derrel Thomas with one out and then gave up his only hit—a solid run-scoring single by Fred Kendall past shortstop Tyson that tied the score, 1-1.

With two out in the ninth, Bake McBride, Ken Reits, Dwyer and Tyson hit successive oingies to win the game.

Lou Brock of St. Louis stole two bases to raise his total to 93 and put him 21 games ahead of Maury Wills's 1962 pace when he swiped a record 104. It was the 20th time this season Brock has stolen two bases in a game and the 106th time in his career. He tried for a third steal in the eighth inning but was casily thrown out. It was the 23d time he was cut down.

Giants 3, Pirates 2

At San Francisco, Dave Kingman's third hit, a single with one out in the 11th inning, drove in Gary Matthews from second to give the Giants a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh and snap the Pirates' victory streak at six games.

Kingman's 14th homer, a solo blast in the fourth, had given the Giants a 2-0 lead and San Francirco was within two outs of making it stand up when the Firstes tied the score in the ninth on Willie Stargell's 21st homer. Dodgers 3, Cubs 1

At Los Angeles, Andy Mes-sersmith and Mike Marshall combined on a three-hitter as the Dodgers collected their fifth straight victory, defeating the Chicago Cubs, 3-1. Los Angeles widened its lead in the National League West to 3 1/2 games over idle Cincinnati. Messersmith, winning his 16th game against five losses, did not allow a hit for six innings but lost the no-hitter and the shutout when rookie Pete Lacock led off the seventh with his first career

Nostalgics and ghosts of all persuasions have made a field day this summer as

France marked the 30th anniversary of the Liberation.

Turning Tragedy Into Fashion in France

DARIS (IHT).-Usually, a 25th anniversary is more feted than I a 30th, but last weekend's celebrations of the 30th anniversary of the Liberation of Paris have been peculiarly intensive, ranging from fireworks and dancing in the streets, TV and radio debates, articles in scandal sheets, and a special two-page inquiry in Le Monde on some of the questions that have remained unanswered since August, 1944, when in Gen. de Gaulle's understandably hyperbolic phrase, a wounded and martyrized Paris rose and freed herself.

One reason for the special interest and healthy inquiry this year is that during the 25th anniversary De Gaulle was still alive and was still imposing his unique view of the Liberation on the French. Also, a new generation has grown up in 30 years and is curious about its parents suffering and shame (Micheline Bood, who was 14 in 1940 and whose diary of the Occupation years, "Les Années Doubles," was published this spring, says most of her mail comes from young people.)

Another reason why the Liberation is so interesting these days is because the period it erupted from, the Occupation, is madly fashionable in France.

As in the United States, Francs is undergoing a wave of nostalgia. The phrase here is la mode retro, and la mode retro consists of an unappetizing mix of the last 40 years, with special emphasis on 1940-44. The Occupation and the "purifying" period, or L'Epuration, that followed it, the most tragic and troubling years of French history, have been reduced to mere fashion and have thus been removed from any moral

A Report

This results in a horror like a recent issue of Paris-Match which printed, as if it had a scoop, some newly uncovered photos of daily life in occupied Paris. La Mode Rétro Discovers Occupied Paris in Color" ran the headline, and the article started as follows:

"La Mode Rétro is here. Europe is delving into its past, the 1930s with the Gatsby style, cloche hats and lowered hemlines. the 1940s with the mode of yellow stars for Jews and gray-green tunics and cleated boots for men ...

No enterprising boutique has started selling yellow stars yet but there's no reason to think they won't. Already, hit songs from the Occupation have been reissued and German-born Karl Lagerfeld was hailed in a mode retro section in Elle for relaunching those amusing 1940s style clothes. Whether rutabaga and ersatz coffee will start reappearing on menus seems unlikely. A line must be drawn somewhere, usually in France at the point where the stomach is concerned.

A 27-year-old writer, Patrick Modiano, described in one serious weekly as "the ancestor of la mode retro," has set his three successful novels in the Occupation and his is also the co-author of the script of Louis Malle's greatly successful film "Lacombe Lucien," which is set in the 1940s and which includes a bomber crew-type cast of stereotype collaborators: an ignorant peasant, a painthy excycling champion, a decayed aristocrat. The 1940s settings are meticulously observed—"they're marvelously done," says a survivor of the time, "done as they only could be by someone who didn't know the period."

Suggestion

Malle's sleek film makes the curious suggestion that chance, not choice, decided whether one collaborated or resisted, and he has remarked in interviews that his intention was to avoid moral judgment, to suggest that "not all fascists are abnormal beasts, that things aren't always as black and white as that." The suggestion is that gray, being neutral, is somehow truer than black or white, that ambiguity is a virtue. An article in a Paris weekly, remarking how "easily" one can alip into the role of torturer or victim, drags in Hannah Arendt's celebrated phrase, "the banality of evil," in support, though in fact what such thinking shows is nothing more than the banality of

Aside from books by historians and memoirs, the work that ended the silence on the subject of the Occupation was of course "Le Chagrin et la Pitié," a film of unique rigor and humanity, There have been other works on the period before la mode retro appeared, notably two best-selling books by children of collaborators: Pascal Jardin's sour and funny "La Guerre a Neuf Ans" and Marie Chaix's somber "Les Lauriers du Lec de Constance."

Marie Chaix has also written articles recently on la mode retro and the nausea it makes her feel. In a Nouvel Observateur article called "Fascism à la Mode," she speaks of the attempt to revive the blackened years of the Occupation and to whitewash them at the same time: "Those who are fascinated by Nazism and the Occupation have short memories." she writes. "If I returned to the 1940s in my book it wasn't from nostalgia but from a wish to wipe them from my mind. "When I cry out to my father, whom I never approved of, aren't dead, I see them on every street corner." At any rate nostalgies and ghosts of all persuasions have had a field day this summer. A few weeks before the men and women of the Resistance paid homage to comrades who fell to free France a two-paragraph French newspaper story noted that the Paris monument to Jewish martyrs had been profaned and signs had been painted on Jewish-owned shopfronts, "Jews to the ovens." Is this, too, la mode rêtro? .

Now you can rest quietly,' it's because I thought that with him

I had buried hate and shame, sorrow and pity. But my ghosts

U.S. Attorney George Beall says that he doesn't feel he did anything wrong by using unat-tributed portions of a published essay in a speech he delivered to the American Bar Association. Beall acknowledged that he lifted parts of an article in "The American Scholar" and included them in his speech to the ABA in Hawaii on Aug. 14.

"I don't feel I've done any-thing wrong," Beall, who led the investigation that led to Spire Agnew's resignation, said in Baltimore. "As a lawyer it is customary to use source material sometimes with acknowledgment and sometimes without." The "American Scholar" article
